RELIGION

Theologian and Politician

ADAM HAMILTON—MAN OF PARTS

Adam Hamilton, known for his deep involvement in religious and political matters, was a dominant figure in early 20th-century society. Born to a Quaker family in Pennsylvania, Hamilton attended Princeton University and later pursued his studies at Yale Law School, where he was influenced by the prominent theologian, Reinhold Niebuhr. His political career began with his work as a lawyer and politician in New Jersey, where he advocated for social justice and civil rights. Hamilton's deep commitment to Christianity and his advocacy for the poor and marginalized made him a respected figure in both religious and political circles.

Hamilton's influence extended beyond New Jersey, as he was known for his role in the formation of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, an organization dedicated to promoting interfaith dialogue and understanding. His work with this organization, along with his role in various political campaigns, solidified his status as a leading figure in American society.

Despite his political and religious accomplishments, Hamilton remained actively involved in his faith, serving as a pastor and theologian. His commitment to both his faith and his political career illustrates the complex relationship between religion and politics in early 20th-century America.

TOURNEMENT DELEGATES

An Explanation

At a meeting held on Monday the 25th March the question of Tournament Delegates was discussed. It appears that the Tournament Delegates, who are supposed to represent the interests of all the players, have been found wanting in many respects. The proposals of the Secretary of the Tournament Committee for the appointment of a new set of delegates were met with opposition. It was pointed out that the present delegates were not in sympathy with the aims of the tournament and that they were likely to be biased in favor of certain players. The Secretary of the Committee then proposed that a new set of delegates be appointed and that these delegates be elected by a vote of the players themselves. This proposal was accepted and a vote was taken. The new delegates were elected and it is hoped that they will be able to carry out the work of the tournament more effectively.

A note from our Editor, "H. W. EDGELY"

Dear Sir,—You have informed me that Mr. Mason has approached you about the possibility of terminating the lease of the club premises. I have advised him to notify the Board of Directors of the Club, and to inform them of the offer made by Mr. Mason. I have also informed him that I am unable to advise him as to the terms of the lease, as this is a matter of negotiation between the parties concerned.

I trust that you will be able to advise Mr. Mason as to the terms of the lease, and that you will be able to accommodate him in the Club premises.

Yours faithfully,

H. W. EDGELY

COMPETITION No. 2

A one-seventh dollar story about something funny that happened while you were at work.

"Once upon a time there lived a man who was very clever, but not very good at his work."

Editorial, 25th April.
Dear "Salient,"—It is regrettable that, while making such a pleasant gesture, you will expect me to do something utterly fruitless as well as annoyingly phony and utterly false at the rate at which this letter was printed and returned to you by the postman.

I am writing to you in connection with your request to help me in my studies. As you may know, I am currently studying at the University of Canterbury and am considering applying for a postgraduate scholarship. I am writing to you in order to seek your advice on how to best prepare for this exam.

I am particularly interested in the field of economics and would like to know if you have any recommendations for books or resources that would be helpful in preparing for this exam. Additionally, I would appreciate any advice you have on how to manage my time effectively while studying.

Thank you in advance for your help and support. I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

The Best of Luck

To the scores of men and women leaving for Auckland on Thursday for the annual representation of Victoria College, "Sailent" says: "The Best of Luck!" Without luck the best of teams can easily find their way to the sheds, and mediocre teams can achieve commendable results. We do not ask for a bigger slice of luck than granted to the teams from the other Colleges. We do not need it. We have simply earned the most promising of years. It but needs its fair share of the boons of good fortune and it will do well.

PROSPECTS COMPARED

Athletics

AUCKLAND has always led the way, but now Victoria is giving the races a chance. The former's efforts in the trials for the University competition will tell the story of the year. Of the 32 events, Victoria now has won 13, and the remainder are Auckland. The Victoria athletes have shown what they can do in a clean and timely manner.

Basketball

AUCKLAND will have six men selected for the University team. The Victoria team includes two full-backs and two half-backs, and one forward. Victoria has the better of the two teams in the trials, and it will be a close contest.

Mixed Pairs

Victorian players with a strong advantage over their opponents. But the competition is tough, and the Victoria will have a good chance to win.

Shooting

AUCKLAND is in the lead, but Victoria is not far behind. Victoria has the better of the two teams in the trials, and it will be a close contest.

Swimming

AUCKLAND has had a good season, and Victoria has also done well. Victoria has the better of the two teams in the trials, and it will be a close contest.

Table Tennis

Victoria's men's team is the stronger, and they should win the championship.
