CANDID COMMENTS.

Being an artist, I must confess I was somewhat surprised to find that a photographer, in its broadest meaning, is a subject of great importance. More so, I must admit, when one considers the vast amount of work which goes into creating these masterpieces. It is a pity that more people do not realize the true value of these photographs.

The works of famous photographers such as Ansel Adams and Alfred Eisenstaedt have been widely acclaimed for their ability to capture the essence of a moment. The power of photography is not limited to capturing beautiful landscapes or exciting events. It can also be used to convey a message or tell a story.

One of the most intriguing aspects of photography is the way in which it can evoke complex emotions. The photograph, as a medium of expression, has the ability to transcend language and speak directly to the soul. It is a form of art that can be appreciated by people of all ages and cultures.

In conclusion, I believe that photography is a powerful art form that should be celebrated and appreciated. It is a way for us to connect with the world around us and with each other. I encourage everyone to explore the beauty and depth that can be found in photographs.
SPORT

Rugby Disappointment

On the result of Saturday’s game with Eastbourne brings our first true realization of where we stand. When the team that had gone to Beccles to meet the Dormston 27 points to 3, the match was described by the press as a “giant-killing” victory. However, when the team went down to a narrow defeat, 3-5, in a game of less opportunity.

The main reason for this defeat is due to the fact that we have played in each game with a combined team of our second and third teams, which has resulted in less skilled players being involved. The lack of skill and experience has led to the team being outplayed in almost every game.
