A SCHOOL OF POLITICAL STUDIES

The Executive Committee of the New Zealand University Students' Association recently invited the Prime Minister to replace the position of the head of the Civil Service. The founding of a "School of Public Administration" at V.U.C., to be known as "V.U.C. School of Public Administration," was also announced. The school will begin teaching in 1953, and is expected to attract a large number of students. The school will offer courses in public administration, including topics such as political theory, public finance, and public policy. The school is expected to become an important center for the training of public administrators.

REALISM

PHOENIX CLUB MEETS

"Realism" was one of the two members of the male sex who attended the meeting of the Phoenix Club held last Thursday. The topic of the meeting was "The Future of Western Civilization," and the discussion centered around the prospects of the world after the current political and economic crisis. The members of the club agreed that the future of Western Civilization is uncertain, and that it will depend on how the current crisis is handled.

APATHY DEBUNKED

Apathy is a term often used to describe the lack of interest or enthusiasm felt by people towards a particular issue or cause. However, the concept of apathy has been广泛 considered by sociologists and psychologists, and there is a growing body of research that suggests that apathy may be a more complex phenomenon than previously thought. It has been suggested that apathy is not simply a lack of motivation, but rather a more nuanced state of emotional and cognitive detachment. As a result, the prevailing notion of apathy may be in need of revision, and further research is required to better understand the complex nature of this phenomenon.

APOLITIC DEBUNKED

Apoliticism is a state of political disengagement, characterized by a lack of political involvement or interest in political activities. However, recent research suggests that apoliticism may be a more complex phenomenon than previously thought. It has been suggested that apoliticism is not simply a lack of motivation, but rather a more nuanced state of emotional and cognitive disengagement. As a result, the prevailing notion of apoliticism may be in need of revision, and further research is required to better understand the complex nature of this phenomenon.

POETRY AND POLITICS

What is the duty of the poet in times of political crisis? Should he take sides? Should he act as a mouthpiece for the government? Here is an urgent and omnipresent problem, which deserves the active attention of everyone interested in public affairs.

The Phoenix Club is offering a prize of £100 to the best poem on the theme of "The Future of Western Civilization." Don't let the fact that you've never written a poem before stop you! A Written prize of £5 is also available.

IT IS YOUNG TOWNS THAT ARE DECLINING

Decline is a term often used to describe the process of a town or city losing population, economic vitality, and cultural vibrancy. However, recent research suggests that decline may be a more complex phenomenon than previously thought. It has been suggested that decline is not simply a lack of growth, but rather a more nuanced state of demographic and economic stagnation. As a result, the prevailing notion of decline may be in need of revision, and further research is required to better understand the complex nature of this phenomenon.
SALIENT

THE PAID PIPERS OF HAMELTIN'S!

On the evening of the 1st, the aged man was standing on the little plaza of a small town in Bavaria, at one end of which lay a fair, where the fair sold the usual wares. Suddenly, the wind blew hard and cold, and the fair was deserted. The man, however, remained, and as the wind died down, he turned to face his fate with a quiet determination.

The KASE OF THE FOUR KERNELS

Once upon a time, in a far-off country, there were four kernels of wheat. One day, a bird came and pecked at them, not realizing their potential for growth. The bird left, but the kernels remained, waiting for the right moment to sprout and become grains of corn.

SACRIFICE

Blissfully, a beautiful, delicate flower opened up its petals to the sun. It grew stronger, more beautiful, and finally blossomed into a magnificent bloom. As it bloomed, it gave off its fragrance, attracting bees and butterflies. It was a beautiful, peaceful existence.

LACK OF PRACTICE

Surveying the results of the College's winter sports programme, many of the younger teams are still lacking in practice. This is especially true of the lower grade teams. Playing against older and stronger teams, the lack of practice is a serious problem. Particularly is this noticeable in the junior grades, where the games are not as competitive. However, the older teams have already had a few weeks of practice and are making good progress. If a few turn up on their knees to improve the team's play is unlikely to show any improvement in the coming months. You yourself, how bad you feel to join in a pass or a getting a little distance. This can only be corrected by consistent practice. See the V.C. turns up to the game.

RUGBY

A number of teams are making good progress in their training. Particularly is this true of the senior team, who have already had a number of matches. The forwards share with them more light, particularly in the tight, and have been working hard to improve their technique.
