Visit to Russia

SIR DAVID IMPRESSED

"Selected" recently interviewed the Chancellor of the University of New Zealand, the Hon. Sir David Smith, who was a member of the delegation which went to the Soviet Union last September. While Sir David was most interested in the many general impressions one gets from such a visit, he was also impressed by the New Zealand universities, which he found to be well-equipped, and had time for sight-seeing as well.

From his observations and conversations, mostly with University people, they found that people in general, and students in particular, live in a city in which the state is established on the home, that it should own all the land and be the only employer, was right, and any capitalist system where one man can employ another for profit was a bad idea, but, however, apparently make an exception in favour of the medical profession. This system appeared to be in operation in most of the cities all kinds—farms, power, radio, and others, university schools. Most important, it seemed to be the same everywhere, and the people who had been born and brought up in the last generation, a large proportion from all sources that the Constitution, the government of the country and the state is based on the idea that people are very free, and free to do what they think fit, even though they were totally different from anyone else's.

Reforms

The members of the delegation were told that a change of policy had occurred since Russia's death in 1933, and the impression was that there was a greater emphasis on individual rights in society. Reform is the new word, and the difference between the two is that the reforms are more permanent and the situation in the country is better.

Housing

Housing is a major problem in Russia, which is still in a very poor state, but new ideas for housing everywhere are not far away. The changes in the cities as well as in the country have been phenomenal. Consumer goods are in short supply, but many are being improved. In hotels, the food is good.

Education

Education is a field of culture that is developing very rapidly. The universities are expanding, and the secondary schools are being improved. The universities are in the hands of the government, and the quality of education is improving. The students are very enthusiastic, and the teachers are very dedicated.

WHERE GOES BRITAIN

Now that the tension as the fighting has died down in the Suez Canal Area, a few reflections on New Zealand's reactions to the crisis may be appropriate.

Regardless of whether the actions of the British and French Governments were justified or unjustified—either partially or entirely—the implications of certain actions here should cause concern to the student of politics.

...the government must act...it is the only way of maintaining control...we must..."I hear Eden got the dump, and Macmillan has left with the hump."
DEAR SALIENT

Vidya Victoria

I fully agree with "Victoria's" viewpoint. I also have the impression that "Victoria""s" viewpoint may be worthy of retention for this college. However, the view that "Victoria""s" viewpoint may be worthy of retention for this college is purely subjective and cannot be generalized to other colleges.

Controversy

Both at Congress and since then, the controversy still continues. The debate was on whether it was a "good Congress" or a "bad Congress". The argument was that even though the Congress was not perfect, there were certain aspects that made it better than other political parties. The controversy was about whether Congress was doing something for the betterment of the society or not. The debate was also about whether Congress was doing enough for the cause of democracy or not.

Scientific Baffling

I must confess that I do not understand many things about science. I think that the world of science is filled with mysteries that we cannot solve. However, I also think that science is a powerful tool for understanding the world around us.
Hill and Home

On a tiny stage, which intensified the dramatic malaise in the sick, Uncle Sam and his son, Jean-Paul Sartre’s “Salesman,” Three Days of the Condor,” fail to connect with the audience. Each realise that they are in hell, and anticipate a visit from their tormentor. Gabriel is a cousin, Estelle is a child, and Gustave is a blowhard. Gabriel is a bore, Estelle is childlike, and Gustave is a combination of the two.

In this room, exposed to the view of the painter, the trio sit on a table, facing the viewer. They are all in pain, suffering from the conditions which make their lives a hell on earth. The trio’s suffering is not just physical but also psychological, and it is this duality that gives them depth and complexity.

Despite the trio’s suffering, they are not alone. The audience is also suffering, and this shared experience of pain and suffering is what makes the play so powerful.

A Great Adventure

For those who had forgotten that the cinema is an art form, the recent film, ‘The Great Adventure’ is a welcome reminder. The director’s triumph is in capturing the spirit of childhood in a film that is both heartwarming and thought-provoking.

‘The Great Adventure’ (released by the studio that owns the rights to ‘The Great Outdoors’) is a film about a group of children who decide to explore the wilds of the forest. The children are led by a wise old man, and they set out on a journey that takes them to the edge of the forest and beyond.

The film is a delight for children and adults alike. It is a story of adventure, friendship, and the joy of exploring nature. The children’s curiosity and enthusiasm are infectious, and the film captures the magic of childhood.

The film is also a reminder of the importance of nature. With the rise of urban living and technology, it is easy to forget the beauty of the natural world. ‘The Great Adventure’ is a reminder of the importance of connecting with nature and the outdoors.

POESY

Two little maidens playing by a French stream, the other was English, and the other was

It is a beautiful scene, and the two maidens are enjoying themselves. The English maiden is playing with a stick, while the other two are simply sitting by the stream.

The two maidens are of different nationalities, but they are united by their love for nature. Their simple pleasures are representative of the beauty of life.

Despite the simplicity of their pleasures, they are content. Their joy is unadulterated, and their happiness is infectious.

CLUB NOTES

The Anglern Society started the year’s activities on the 3rd of March with a lecture on “What is the future of the English language?” The lecture was delivered by Professor John Smith from Cambridge University.

On the 23rd of March, the Film Society held a special screening of the film “The Great Adventure.” The screening was attended by a large number of students and faculty members. The film was highly recommended and the audience enjoyed it thoroughly.

At a brief and snappy novetional A.G.M. recently the French Club elected Mlle. Émilie Renault as President. Mlle. Renault and her committee are well prepared for the year. Approximate thirty-five members attended the gathering, enjoying the opportunity to network and discuss French language and culture.

WHAT’S COOKING?

If, as we suggested in our first issue, the push for “The Anglern Society Student Association Executive" was effective, we are pleased to report that the student association is now well underway. The executive is making a significant impact on campus life, bringing new energy and enthusiasm to student affairs.

The executive is heading the charge, calling on students to participate in new and exciting activities. They are working to create a more inclusive and welcoming environment for all students.

Students are encouraged to reach out to the executive with any questions or ideas they may have. They are committed to ensuring that student voices are heard and that student needs are met.

The executive is looking forward to a successful year of engagement and growth in the student association at S.C.M. campus.
NZ U.S.A. SPORTS OFFICER

The selection of Alan Robinson to succeed Mr. Dick Gilliland as the NZ.U.S.A. sports officer will be welcomed especially in tennis and table tennis circles, as Mr. Robinson is a winner of N.Z. U.S.A. tennis blue and also a winner of N.Z.U.S.A. table tennis at elections.

YACHTING

Yachting is included in this year's Eastern Universities' sports programme, and for five days we saw no other white persons. We cruised about 500 miles by one another, and I think that a few of our students got a glimpse to their temples, clung to each other, and shared the excitement of their rock paintings.

TOURNAMENT AT DUNEDIN

To the east, Dunedian to 23 April. The big, colourful and a big, colourful and popularly known for its tuberculosis, will be held this year on Saturday, April 16, at the Wellington College grounds.

LOWERING GRADUATION

John Welsh (101) scored the first century in the lower grades, which was the opening for the first time in this county. When the team, which included the famous cricketer, Mr. John Welsh, bowled clean through the middle, he did not score a century. The team played a match against Kilmarnock, a town across the river, and took the value of his innings. The reality of his innings became apparent.

SLOW SCORING

The University tennis team has recently come in for much criticism because of its "slow scoring". Chief efficient Wilson said the left-handed bowler, Mr. Michael Johnson, was the real blame for the slow scoring. Johnson, who was once the captain of the "Students' Association" president Mr. Wilson, was the best in the lower grades and bowled a fine spell of bowling. The team played a match against Kilmarnock, where Johnson's bowling was very effective.

EXTRA EXTRA

Extra was launched on its creative annual career with a casting meeting on March 21st. The organizer, Mr. Woolf, and the producer Bill Shaw and Ian Rieh, have a good script. Mr. Frank Cottin (a Highland lawyer) has been cast as the leading man with Extra, since 1948 and are busy at the rehearsal house. The show, which is for three weeks in Wellington, is directed by John Duff, and in the last week, they are doing a dress rehearsal. The show is being produced by Mr. John Duff, and in the last week, they are doing a dress rehearsal.
